

When it comes to banking in Laos, with more than forty banks across the country, competition in the banking market is so fierce that many banks are choosing to use outreach media to promote their marketing activities and build public trust through our labels